It is our pleasure to announce the academic program for the 16th International Conference on General Linguistics, which is now available online. The opening keynote will be delivered by Dr. Beatriz Gallardo Paúls, Professor of Linguistics at the University of Valencia, who will speak on Disinformative Discourse: Strategies, Techniques, and Responses. The closing plenary session will be presented by Dr. Simon E. Fisher, Director of the Max Planck Institute for Psycholinguistics, Language and Genetics, and is titled Speech and Language: Learning to Read the Genome. Both topics are highly relevant and will be delivered by two leading experts in their fields, ensuring great interest for all attendees.

The program also includes three round tables featuring renowned specialists in the following areas:

1. Contributions of Sign Language Studies to General Linguistics Research

Moderator: Dr. Juan Pablo Mora Gutiérrez, University of Seville

- Dr. Inmaculada Concha Báez Montero, University of Vigo
- Dr. Gemma Barberà Altimira, Pompeu Fabra University
- Dr. Francisco Vera Villaverde, Rey Juan Carlos University
- Ms. Inmaculada Cascales Ruiz, University of Alicante

2. Impact of Artificial Intelligence on Linguistic Studies

Moderator: Dr. Borja Navarro Colorado, University of Alicante

- Ms. Elena Álvarez Mellado, UNED
- Dr. Mario Crespo Miguel, University of Cádiz
- Dr. Rui Sousa Silva, University of Porto
- Dr. Juan Antonio Pérez-Ortiz, University of Alicante

3. Acquisition and Teaching of Additional Languages: Current Challenges and Future Perspectives

Moderator: Dra. Susana Pastor Cesteros, University of Alicante

- Dr. Susana Martín Leralta, Nebrija University
- Dr. David Lasagabaster Herrarte, University of the Basque Country
- Dr. Alejandro Castañeda Castro, University of Granada
- Dr. Natividad Hernández Muñoz, University of Salamanca

Thanks to the enthusiastic response from the academic community, the program will also feature over 300 contributions, including presentations, posters, and thematic panels covering various research areas. As usual, there will also be a General Linguistics assembly during the conference.

We are organizing a social program that will include receptions and a conference dinner, with further details to be announced on the website. A form with all the necessary information will be sent to registered participants in due course.

Finally, we remind you that registration is open since January 15. On the Submissions and Registration section of the website, you can find details on fees according to categories and deadlines, as well as payment procedures. The last day to register to be part of the academic program is May 31. The website also contains useful information about transportation and accommodation.
